WORST IN OUR NAVY'S HISTORY

pairs to her boilers or machinery on her arrival from Honolulu. The fact that she had steam up and was about to get under way for Port Harford, California, would indicate that nothing serious in the boilers had been discovered or reported. It is not improbable that considerable difficulty will be experienced by the court of inquiry in securing information concerning the cause of the affair as it is likely that many of the men who would be best able to give light on the condition of the boiler previous to the explosion, were killed.

It was suggested that perhaps the explosion of the forward boiler was followed by the explosion of all the other boilers on the vessel but this theory does not appear to be borne out by the facts. No mention of any series of explosions is made in the dispatches and the dispatches indicate exactly the contrary. The statement was made that immediately upon going aboard his vessel, Commander Young ordered the gunboat beached to prevent her from sinking. Evidently there was steam up in the other boilers and they were intact, or else the boat could not have beached herself.

It has been suggested that possibly the accident was the result of foul play. Such a diabolical scheme of destruction could have been accomplished by placing some powder or dynamite or other explosive in the coal but the theory of assassination does not seem to have much ground at the present time, for the reason that no motive appears to have developed. So far as was known, the men on the vessel were satisfied and there was no trouble of any kind aboard. Nobody ashore in Honolulu or San Diego was likely to have been a party to such a horrible thing. The line of inquiry will unquestionably be along the theory of a defect in the boiler.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mrs. Ensign Perry the widow of the only officer who appears to have fallen a victim to the explosion. She was quite well known in Honolulu. She reached San Francisco from Honolulu by the transport Sherman on the evening of July 19, a day and a half before the accident that made her a widow. She was probably waiting at San Francisco or else was to go to Mare Island to await the arrival of her husband for the Bennington was to tow the Monitor Wyoming to Mare Island.

Although the dispatches made no mention of such a condition it is not improbable that the men were mustered on the deck of the vessel at the time of the explosion and that many of them were directly over the fatal boiler when the explosion occurred.

There is a statement in the cablegram to Mrs. Lieutenant Commander Victor Blue which is not clear. The dispatch reads:

"Los Angeles, July 20.—Mare Island Hospital. Convalescent. No danger. Come."

This cablegram was signed by her husband, Mrs. Blue hurriedly left by the transport Warren for San Francisco Thursday afternoon, so knew nothing of the accident on the Bennington, for the reason that it had not occurred. Her husband was not on board the vessel evidently but was at Los Angeles about 150 miles from the scene of the accident. He had evidently been operated upon for appendicitis. The reference in this cablegram to the "Mare Island Hospital" evidently meant that he would proceed to that place as a convalescent.

The Bennington has a wonderful record for steaming capacity. She has steamed more than any other boat in the American service and probably in any other service. Her boilers were evidently of a much better type than the average boiler. The continual use which was made of them however may have worn them out and developed a defect.

REMARKABLE RIFLE SHOOTING

SAM JOHNSON SCORES A HUNDRED PER CENT IN TWO RAPID FIRE TESTS.

Sam Johnson, captain of Company F, yesterday and today made rifle-shooting scores in practice which would have made him a winner over the best man who appeared in the last American National competition at Seagirt, New Jersey. Johnson, with a lot of other National guardsmen, is practicing daily for the prospective competition, in which Hawaii is to take part, and if he and they do as well at Seagirt as they are doing here, Hawaii will stand high.

In two rapid-firing tests yesterday Johnson scored a hundred per cent. The rapid-firing proposition is five shots in twenty seconds. In this experiment, with timed shots, Johnson yesterday made fifty out of a possible fifty, at a target 200 yards distant. Repeating the test at 500 yards, five shots in twenty seconds, Johnson made the same perfect score again. This wonder greatly pleased the guardsmen present. In the other tests, at the 800 yards, Johnson made 46 out of a possible 50, at a thousand yards he made 45, at 200 yards 42 and at 600 yards 43. Taking all the tests together there is a score of 276 out of a possible 300.

"This score," said Colonel Jones, "is nine per cent better than the score made by the highest man at the last competition at Seagirt."

The shooting is done at the Kahauli military reservation, where ranges have been put up for practice. Sam Johnson is a Russian by birth and every time he makes a score someone is

SIDE-ISSUE IN PARKER CASE

MAGOON OBJECTS TO STATEMENT THAT GEAR WAS ABOUT SIGNING AN INJUNCTION.

The Parker ranch hearing continued this morning before Judge Lindsay, with E. P. Low still on the witness stand and under cross-examination by W. A. Kinney. Low is on the stand yet and is being cross-examined very closely about his statements regarding F. W. Carter's management of the big ranch.

The name of Judge Gear was brought up this morning, Kinney remarking that Gear had been just about to sign the injunction asked for at one time by Parker, to tie up Carter's hands. The injunction was read in evidence as not signed, and Kinney said the judge had his pen in hand and was about to sign it.

Magoon said this was unfair to Gear and was untrue. Kinney and Ballou, who were present at the time, agreed that Gear had said himself that he was about to sign it as a matter of form, when the hearing was asked for which resulted in its not being signed.

Magoon said he would have Gear called and prove the contrary. He declared that the statement was unjust to Gear and that he would not allow Gear to be injured by such a statement.
